in vogue virtually ever since Mayor Hylan took office.

One of the instances mentioned was that of the reception given under the auspices of the Mayor's committee for the reception of distinguished guests to the returning American participants in the last olympic games. So wide a stretch was that affair from the real purposes of the committee—that of entertaining such visitors as Marshal Joffre and other notables, representing fereign governments—and so large were certain items of the bill that Comptroller Craig characterized the effort to charge the expense against the city as an outrage, declared the appropriation to the committee never contemplated such a use of city funds, and refused to pay the bill.

Thus far the move for switching revenue revision ahead of tariff revision is centred in the Senate, where members of the Finance Committee are giving serious consideration to it. But the discovery which was called to the attention of leaders by The New York Herallo has attracted marked attention. The apparent necessity for immediate revenue revision is found in the first few paragraphs of the new budget law, which make it mandatory to present to Congress not only estimates of expenses and appropriations, but also way to reach that which comes from outside. It is probable an official statement on the subject may be issued before long so that the Administration may put itself straight on the issue. There was reason to believe when the propaganda first started some weeks ago against retention of a bureau of education as a unit of one of the departments that it originated within the bureau, which saw an opportunity for expansion at a time when action was being taken on the subject of reorganization. The fact that a bill was pending—the Smith-Towner bill—in Consreas, for the creation of a department of education on a par with the other departments served as the means for the starting of the propaganda. Educational and religious publications took up the matter, however, and now it is evident that the subject is being agitated in every section of the country. Many petitions endorsing the Smith-Towner bill have been received and resolutions for and against it have been adopted at national conventions of teachers and churches within recent weeks. rested by agency detectives to-night at Savin Rock and looked up at the New Haven police station as fugitives from Justice. They are under indictment in Newark, N. J., for several burglaries, it was said.

One of the crimes charged, the police say, is a $100,000 jewel robbery at the Streicher Ring Company's plant in Newark, in October, 1920. Feinberg recently opened a restaurant at Savin Rock.

The restaurant was crowded with a holiday throng when the arrests were made.

The Captain returned to Manhattan, where McLoughlin and Handy were landed. An ambulance was summoned from the New York Hospital and Dr. sinields attended them for submersion. They were then arrested and taken to the West Twentieth street station, charged with disorderly conduct.
